PREFACE.

Motto: "Only he lives who enjoys life while living."

Goethe says:

This world has not been made of pap and broth,
Let us not then become inured to sloth,
To bite into hard morsels fate does oft compel,
If we would not be choked, our teeth must grind them well.

REAL life requires men of strength and nerves, but no weaklings. That man, however, who is a slave of his body, and who sees himself forced to yield to his bodily affections, becomes a weakling. He will shun every unpleasant affection from without, and will involuntarily feel himself attracted to what he expects to find agreeable. Such a man will become either intemperate and over-fond of pleasure or hypochondriac; that is, his entire dependence upon the affections of his body discourages him. Such a spoiled and effeminate person looks only to the wants of his body; he is inattentive to the ideals of life, and renounces them when their attainment is attended by difficulties. Low selfishness is a characteristic of such persons. A selfish man cares more for his appetite than the future of his race. Such evils must be fought by rational education, and it is the duty of those, to whom the instruction of the children in the public schools has been intrusted to try to educate citizens for the State, who are so free from the affections of the body that they do not stand in the way of the common good. It must be therefore an essential care of the public schools, to devote to the body the same attention, which is undeniably bestowed upon the mind.

"It is my belief," says Virchow, the great pathologist, "that only one-half of school hours should be devoted to study, and the rest to physical exercises and games," and this is no exaggerated acknowledgement of the necessity of bodily training.

We have already stated that the hypochondriac person cannot be a good citizen. Now every logical thinker will be far from demanding that the school should be an orthopedic institution. A system, which provides for exercises on the sanitary principle only, is of injury in a school-room and its advocates have never been aware of the many educational demands necessary in the instruction of physical culture. Though exclusive orthopaedic exercises, as represented at present by some so-called systems, should unmercifully be expelled from the school room, yet provision should be made to not instruct the pupil intellectually at the expense of his health, nor weaken him by the exercise of the necessary discipline. Health, by the practice of bodily training, shall rather be maintained than restored.

Every one will concede that the tender and rapidly growing body of the child must suffer from the necessity of being confined eight or ten years in the close atmosphere of the school, or private study room. For this reason the constraint of intellectual labor ought to be relieved by the agreeable exercise of his vital powers. "The weaker the body, the more it commands; the stronger it is, the more it obeys," said Jean-Jacques Rousseau in his "Emile," and Juvenal expresses the same thought in his generally imperfectly quoted maxim: "Optandum est, ut sit mens sana, in corpore sano." Thus physical training not only strengthens the bones and muscles, but also corrects the bodily defects arising from evil habits.

The course of instruction can thereby be carried on without interruptions, as the child, always bright, always healthy, never grows sluggish, nor is absent from school.

As the vital powers of the child are kept steadily clear and active, it always pays the teacher the attention that is so necessary for successful instruction. Of equal value in education, with attention, is obedience. The latter is especially promoted through physical exercises, and nothing as much as these can excite a love for obedience, as is known from experience. Knowing this fact, the educator may make the means the end, and profiting by the inclination, may accustom his pupils to obedience. It is a part of human nature, to obey gladly and willingly, where love and true humanity call, and at the same time the fact is evident that attention and obedience are too often wanting in our schools.

When all perform exercises the success of which depends upon the constant attention of the individual, the sense of order is awakened. This is from the nature of things, followed by a sense of duty. Then, since this attentiveness depends on reciprocity, the important consciousness of the dependence of one on the other, of all on all, is called forth. This consciousness tends toward the conquering of an acquired overbearing. The feeling that all are equal, that all have equal rights, originates with the physical exercises. The public school, maintained by the people, should consider it as its bounden duty to educate citizens for a government of the people.

Who will doubt that by the venture to perform an exercise, a wholesome influence is exerted on the nerves? Courage increases, self-confidence is strengthened; by the measuring of his strength the pupil is guarded against rashness, and by means of a rapid and appropriate use of his strength, and the entire control of every part of his body, his power of will and of action receive their highest development. Jahn, the "father" of modern gymnastics, says beautifully: "The one grows stronger by the other, grows more vigorous by his strength, is encouraged and elevated himself. One example thus becomes a model, and reaches further than thousand teachings. A noble deed has never been without progeny." And are not all these qualities beautiful and noble enough to give them a home in the temples of the people, in the public schools?

Even the child is subject to moods. How often it is sad and its poor heart sorrowful! During physical exercises which include games, during "work in the garb of joy," the child forgets its grief and it is not the least duty of education to preserve to the child a joyful spirit or to cheer it up. An embittered child is like a withering rose: hardly given to life, it is a victim to death. "In sorrowful hours, when wrath and anxiety and sorrow rose in bitter billows in my heart, so that it seemed as if head and breast would burst, I have, by these exercises, dispelled my cares and acquired oblivion, even though for a few hours, yet they were not to be bought with gold," said Lion, and would it not be a great satisfaction, if we could thus appease the sorrows of a child's heart? Here, ye philanthropists, here apply all your levers and give to youth its rights by giving it physical training. Instead of floral missions and children's balls, at which you preside, let them turn in gay circles, let them enjoy a gladsome romp and run, a bold and daring acting, so that they may grow up healthy and real, to the joy of all, to the satisfaction of themselves, and to the example of posterity.

Rueckert says:

The workman for his work and goodly tool doth need,
The fighter goodly weapons for the fray;
Thou fighter of the Lord, and workman, spirit, heed
That thou treat not thy body in too light a way;
It is thy working tool, it is thy battle gear,
Keep thou it well, in work and fight to persevere.

Introductory Remarks.

THE exercises of this book are divided in four principal parts—Exercises in the Seat and at the Desk, Calisthenics in the Aisle, Wand and Dumb-Bell Exercises.

The great advantage of this book over all other books of the same character is that the many illustrations do away with long explanations, which, in many cases, cannot make explicit what the observing eye immediately sees. It must be, however, an observing eye, which detects closely the positions of body and limbs.

To achieve good results, then, the teacher must follow closely and intelligently the rules of instruction given.

The exercises of Parts First and Second are divided in three grades, according to the age of the scholars.

The first grade is for scholars of the first and second school year.

The second grade is for scholars of the third and fourth school year.

The third grade is for scholars of the fifth school year and upward.

The Wand and Dumb-Bell Exercises are best practiced by scholars of the last three years of grammar and high schools only. A strict boundary, however, cannot be drawn.

The teacher will find the index compiled by lessons for each grade separately. Beginning with the first lesson, the scholars will learn the fundamental exercises. In a short time all simple exercises will be familiar to them.

The teacher must prepare a lesson previous to teaching it. If a lesson calls for Exercises 100, 200, 300, 400, 500 and 600, the instructor will look for them in the given order.

The Composite Exercises are for scholars of the third grade (fifth school year and upward) only. They may be taken up after a few months' practice.

A lesson should not be abandoned until it is well learned.

After having learned the simple exercises, the lessons are so arranged that all parts of the body, and as many muscles as possible, are put into action, and all educational principles are taken in consideration.

Do not fear to tire the child's muscles. It is the aim to do so. Not before having accomplished this, should the exercise be given up.

At least ten minutes regularly every day and not less, should be devoted to physical culture. Ten minutes in the forenoon and ten in the afternoon, in the middle of each session is an advisable plan.

The Wand and Dumb-Bell Exercises may be taken alternately with Calisthenics.

The temperature must be moderate and the air pure. Open the windows from above and below in warm weather; from above in colder seasons. Avoid all draught. In cold weather close the windows immediately after exercising.

The scholars should wear loose garments.

The good result in Physical Culture depends to a great extent on the manner the command is given. There are two kinds of commands—the command of explanation and the command of execution.

The command of explanation is pronounced slowly and should give a clear and short description of the exercise; the mistakes, which are to be avoided, are pointed out in it, but do not waste any more time than is necessary.

The command of execution contains but one word, and should be given decisively and shortly. Between the two commands a sufficient pause must be made to allow the pupils time to think.

All exercises of this book are divided into :

- 1—Simple.
- 2—Simple-compound.
- 3—Successive.
- 4—Alternate.
- 5—Composite.

1—Simple exercises are movements which are performed by the head, trunk and limbs separately.

2—Simple-compound movements require the exercising of different parts of the body at the same time.

3—Successive exercises are simple-compound movements of similar kinds in succession.

4—Alternate exercises are simple or simple-compound movements which are performed alternately.

5—Composite exercises are simple-compound exercises linked together so that each successive motion begins at the end of the preceding.

EXAMPLES.

1—Simple.

Lesson 10—Arms forward—Raise!

Arms—Down!

Raise arms forward—1! 2!

2—Simple-Compound.

Lesson 177—Raise heels and arms forward—1! 2!

2—Successive.

Lesson 308—Raise right and left leg sideward and forward and arms right and left and forward, alternately—1 to 8!

4—Alternate.

Lesson 1028—Raise right (or left) leg sideward and arms sideward—1! 2!

Bend trunk obliquely forward (or left) and place hands on hips—1! 2!

5—Composite.

Lesson 1020—Raise heels and arms forward—1!

Lower heels and move arms sideward—2!

As 1 to 3!

Position (fundamental position)—4!

We will illustrate by these examples how to practice the different exercises:

1. Simple.

Lesson 19—Arms forward—Raise! The teacher will give the command of explanation (arms forward) slowly and distinctly and then allow the scholars sufficient time to think. If they do not know the exercise, show it to them, or let an able scholar do it for you. Then give the command of execution sharp and short (Raise!) The scholars will remain in this position (fig. 16) and the teacher will make the necessary corrections. Be strict, never lenient. Do not undertake to correct all mistakes at the first time. Give now the command, Arms—Down! Let them repeat in the same manner until all do it well.

After considerable time has been devoted to teach a new exercise thus, which not necessarily needs to be at the first attempt learned to perfection, the practice, In Time, begins. You will announce the exercise thus:

Raise arms forward, in two counts, in time (pause)—Begin! and count or rap (with pencil or foot)—1! 2!

This announcement has been shortened all through the book for the sake of convenience and distinct arrangement. The exercise, abbreviated, reads thus:

Raise arms forward—1! 2!

Bear this in mind. In the first grade exercise mostly, not in time but by command, in the other grades, only when a good result is effected.

Exercises which afford strength rather than grace and dexterity should seldom be practiced in time.

In the first grade let the scholars sometimes count with you aloud when you practice with them in time.

The exercising in time may be done without your counting or rapping, giving the scholars the measure previously. After receiving the command to exercise in time, they do not stop until you command Halt!

All motion must always be executed at the very moment at which you give the command.

All motion must be executed vigorously and precisely. Each motion must be marked. Exercises which aim to acquire strength or which afford a large motion, will be executed by a somewhat slower count, as bending of trunk or lunging and straddle position.

2—Simple-compound.

Simple-compound exercises are practiced in the same manner as the simple exercises.

3—Successive.

Successive exercises must be learned separately first and then in succession.

Lesson 398, for example, by this mode :

Raise right leg sideward and arms right—1 ! 2 !

After some practice,

Raise right leg sideward and arms left—1 ! 2 !

And then

Raise right leg forward and arms forward—1 ! 2 !

And at last,

Left leg forward and arms forward—1 ! 2 !

4—Alternate.

Alternate exercises are learned and practiced well separately.

Lesson 1028—

Raise right leg sideward and arms sideward—1 ! 2 !

This is taught and practiced as explained.

Bend trunk obliquely forward right and hands on hips—1 ! 2 !

Also, and then both exercises alternately:

Raise right leg sideward and arms sideward—1 !

Position—2 !

Bend trunk obliquely forward right and hands on hips—3 !

Position—4 !

Whenever an exercise allows the practice of the left and right side, you must do so without fail.

Raise right leg sideward and arms sideward—1!

Position—2!

Bend trunk obliquely forward right and hands on hips—3!

Position—4! (Arms are at same time lowered).

Raise left leg sideward and arms sideward—5!

Position—6!

Bend trunk obliquely forward left and hands on hips—7!

Position—8! (Arms are lowered at same time).

The teacher should not impress the pupils with the idea that an exercise must begin right, but on the contrary, the left side should receive due attention.

5. Composite.

Composite-exercises should invariably be practiced by command. They afford more skill than the preceding.

Lesson 1029 (see figure)

Raise heels and arms forward—1!

From this position:

Lower heels and move arms sideward—2!

From this position:

Take the first posture—3!

From this position:

Starting position—4!

Whenever the exercising of both sides (right and left) is possible do not neglect it.

Beginning with the second position (2!) you have a different exercise, which you will practice.

Arms sideward—1!

Raise heels and move arms forward—2!

Lower heels and move arms sideward—3!

Position—4!

Never allow a scholar to stand in a disorderly position.

Do not correct too much at one time.

Make good use of the time. Do not substitute other names for the exercises. You do it at the risk of confusing your scholars.

Not until Calisthenics are taught for a few months should lessons in Wand and Dumb-Bell Exercises begin. You may begin the Wand Exercise as Lesson No. 1, and proceed. Wand and Dumb-Bell Exercises should never supersede Calisthenics entirely.

TACTICS AND TACTICS IN CONNECTION WITH CALISTHENICS.*

938—Mark time—Mark ! †Attention—Halt !

Marking time is marching in place. The feet are moved as if you were marching.

Special attention must be paid that all scholars begin at the same moment with their left foot. The teacher will command to halt when the left foot touches the floor and the pupils will halt with the right and all at the same time. This exercise must be done noiselessly, and can be practiced previously to leaving the room, so as to accustom the scholars to keep step. † The teacher will do well to place a more able scholar on a table and let him illustrate it.

939—Forward—March !Attention—Halt !

When the command March ! is given all scholars must begin at once with the left foot.

All scholars, the last too, must at once march forward. Do not allow any scholar to mark time. Halt is commanded when the right foot touches the floor, and an additional step is made, and all halt with the right foot. All must take equally large steps.

940—One (or more steps) forward—March !941—One (or more steps) backward—March !*942—Close files forward—March !*Open files backward—March !

The scholars standing in the aisles behind each other form a file. All scholars of the file, excepting the first, march forward until the distance between them allows a quarter turn to the right or left. The file is opened in reversed order.

943—Close files to the right (or left)—March !Open files to the left (or right)—March !

Previous to this exercise a quarter turn must be executed. Files are closed to the right (or left) beginning with the right (or left) foot marching sideward.

Marching sideward right is begun with the right, marching sideward left with the left foot. Two counts for each step.

945—Forward on tip-toes—March !Attention—Halt !

*Where halls are at disposal for the use of marching and complicated tactics, we recommend "Stecher's School Tactics for the Use of Schools and Gymnastic Associations," Gustave Stecher, 62 Calhoun Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

†All exercises in marching are begun with the left foot.

946—Backward on tip-toes—March!

Attention—Halt!

947—Changing-step forward—March! 1! 2!

Attention—Halt!

The teacher will drill this exercise in the following manner: Left foot forward—1! Place right foot obliquely behind heel of left foot and at the same time step forward with left foot—2! From this position right foot forward—1! Place left foot forward in same manner as the right above—2! After considerable practice, in time. Two counts.

948—Rocking-step—Walk! 1! 2! 3!

Left foot obliquely forward—1! Cross-step-position forward right—2! and raise and lower heels—3! From this position right foot obliquely forward—1! Cross-step-position forward left—2! and raise and lower heels—3! In time, three counts. This exercise can be executed in or from place.

949—Rocking-step and raise arms to a circle over head—1! 2! 3!

(Arms are raised at 1! and lowered at 3!)

950—Rocking-step and raise right and left arm to a semi-circle over head and left and right arm on small of back, alternately—1 to 3! (The raising of arms at 1! the lowering at 3!)

951—Rocking-step and swing arms sideward upward and snap fingers, alternately—1 to 3! (Snapping of fingers at 3!)

953—One step forward left and right and rocking-step left and right, alternately—1 to 5!

955—Changing-step and rocking-step linked—1 to 4! (Last movement of changing-step is used for rocking-step).

A person facing a given point is in the front position to the same; then, according to that part of a circle which he describes while turning about his longitudinal axis (a line perpendicular through his body) we distinguish an eighth, a quarter or a half circle. Half left (or right)—Face! is an eighth; left (or right)—Face! a quarter; left (or right) about—Face! a half circle. All facings are executed on the heel to which side the turn is performed.

PART THIRD.

WAND EXERCISES.

WAND EXERCISES.
